

Spring 1999

From the Podium

As I begin my tenure as President of the College Band Directors National Association, I find myself in the unique position of being able to look back and look forward at the same time. Who we have been, who we are, and who we will become, are so integrally related that it is next to impossible to separate the three. Every beginning provides the opportunity to take stock, to evaluate, to reflect and to dream.

First and foremost, I want to acknowledge the incredible leadership of Allan McMurray over the past two years. His vision for our organization has positioned us to move into the Twenty-first Century as a solvent, vital, and influential professional organization. His tireless commitment to and outright passion for our art has benefited all of our futures. I am thankful for his friendship and grateful for the enriching spirit that he has passed on to CBDNA.

I would be remiss if I did not also say thank you to my other colleagues on the Board including: David Blackington, Richard Bundy, Hal Cooper, James Croft, Richard Floyd, Michael Haithcock, Patricia Hoy, Craig Kirchhoff, Richard Miles, Robert Ponto, and John Whitwell. I have been fortunate to serve with these fine musicians and dedicated professionals.

I hope all of you were as rejuvenated by the Austin Convention as I was. I cannot remember ever being more excited about the prospects for growth that were presented. Jerry Junkin, Paula Crider, and the entire University of Texas staff deserve our gratitude. Their convention has provided a template which will serve as a model for any future meeting that seeks to stimulate, challenge, and uplift.

While we need to continue to get composers to write for us, we also need to encourage historians to write about us. We must continue to refine and define our art, and to inject ourselves into our culture. Our goal should be nothing short of impacting and changing the culture. I believe that we can all do a better job of marketing what is a truly professionally viable art form to our students, colleagues, administrators, and most importantly the public at large.

If one is going to create ripples in the cultural pond, one must throw something into the water. The size of the stone may vary—pebble, rock, or boulder—each has its purpose. I have long believed that the greatest impact occurs right where the rock enters. One person may create a few ripples, however, several individuals all impacting their cultural environment or pond can create tidal waves. There are so many of you doing great work. Historically we are now enjoying more outstanding college bands than ever before. We are blessed with literally hundreds of serious professionals in our midst whose commitment to music education and college band is inspiring. College bands all over our country are recording, touring, performing, and attaining higher professional standards than ever imagined.

We have developed a number of partnerships that are beneficial to our organization. One of the most important is our alliance with our colleagues in the military. They offer a future for all of our players who aspire to make a living playing their instrument.

Growth is a necessary part of our future. We need to be flexible and versatile enough to embrace all of those conductors and teachers who share our goals, but also diverse enough to reach out to those who would encourage us to expand our horizons. We have the ability and responsibility to define who we are to our colleagues and culture. The future of our art form is dependent on individuals who are willing to contribute and look beyond their own settings. This is asking a lot, for there are no busier people than wind conductors. To this end, we will be vigilant about seeking input. Shortly you will receive a survey that Michael Haithcock and I will be putting together. We would greatly appreciate your honest input. Our goal is to design a future that incorporates the desires of the membership into the plan.

The profession needs all of you to get involved and to contribute at what ever level you can manage. If you choose not to be involved or supportive, we need to know why. Our collective goal is to make CBDNA worth your time and energy. We want to be an organization that you cannot do without, that benefits you and your students. You can help us, help you, and become even more meaningful in your professional life. Please take a moment to respond to the survey. It will also be available to you on our national website.

To close, let me say as honestly and sincerely as I can, that I am honored and challenged by the job ahead. I look forward to working to advance our art and hope that you will join us as we continue into the next Century with all the fervor and passion that we can muster.

Reflections on the CBDNA National Conference from a Community College Band Director

In a conversation with Allan McMurray at the conference, he asked me to share my thoughts for the Report. This was my first national CBDNA conference. Last Fall I attended my first regional conference in Jacksonville. Although community college directors were in the vast minority at both conferences, participation was crucial for me. At one of the sessions, Robert Reynolds described the scope of CBDNA as including institutions ranging in size from "resume speed city college" to a large university. I am sure that scope includes me somewhere. The conference gave me the opportunity to:

- 1. meet and talk with colleagues and share ideas,
- 2. hear many great performances of colleagues' ensembles (a rare occurrence with our busy schedules),
- 3. hear new works, recent works, and standards of the literature,
- 4. re-tune my hearing to a fine band sound produced by some excellent ensemble playing,
 - 5. be challenged to excellence and personal creativity, and
- 6. encounter, at times, the "cutting edge" of our field, in performance, creativity, and leadership.

I realize that these responses could be shared by all who attended. For me, they are of particular importance because my students view themselves to be in "college," not "community college." They want the same quality that a four-year program can provide. If I have no contact with those programs, it would be an injustice both to my students and to the transfer institutions who will have them next. While we may not have the "horses" to perform all of the literature, it has been our goal to work among a subset of the literature that is accessible and challenging to us. To this end, CBDNA has been of great value to me.

Footnote: Ray Cramer made reference to two women directors who were important to his early musical inspiration. I would add that my earliest musical inspiration was provided by my middleschool band director, Charlotte Cooper, at Bay Point Junior High School in St. Petersburg, Florida. Although I revered her as a fine band director and wonderful person in the 60's, it wasn't until she recently passed away that I realized what an influence she had been in our county and state. When she was a student at Florida State College for Women (now FSU), she was responsible for starting a marching band, going against the grain of tradition at that time. During her tenure as a teacher she was one of the founders of our local youth orchestra program, the Pinellas (County) Youth Symphony, which is still going strong today. Hats off to her and many other pioneers who have shaped the future of music education, demonstrating the "power of one" to make a difference at every level.

A Bandanna Follow-up

Thank you to all CBNDA members who supported the Bandanna project!! Through your monetary and moral support, this project will leave a lasting mark on the band conducting profession. The opera in full and vocal scores, the two band pieces, the published libretto, the upcoming dissertation by Ed Powell, a CD to be released this summer, video tapes available from Carl Fischer, and reviews in many publications (including Opera News) provide ongoing evidence of CBDNA's intentions to be a major force in classical music as we move into the new century.

While all these components of the project are now available how we utilize them remains a primary issue in our quest for mainstream artistic acceptance. If each of the 78 consortium members programs one or both of the two band pieces in the next year, we will have provided an extraordinary number of performances to a recently commissioned composer. If five institutions schedule the full opera within the next three years we will have even more tangible evidence that as a profession we are capable of providing "second performances" far beyond the norm from most performance mediums. Please encourage high school directors in your sphere of influence to examine the music and the libretto. These materials are ideal for directors looking for interdisciplinary ideas that relate to National Standards eight and nine.

We cannot control the life of this score in the opera-world at large. Only time and repeated performances will answer the lingering questions:

- a) is the libretto too "high brow?"
- b) is the first act too long and tedious?
- c) is the use of the violins in Mona's prayer a wonderful dramatic moment or a blow to the concept of "wind accompaniment?" and
- d) will the lower versions of the roles for Morales and Kane make it more accessible?

These issues are questions I have, questions the membership of CBDNA expressed to me in Austin, and questions that the cast and company struggled with as the work progressed. The opera tradition is one of "tinkering" and Daron Hagen is well versed in that tradition. Find a way to work with this score and struggle with these issues in your place. Through this kind of artistic exploration Bandanna will become what it deserves.

One things seems clear: the band and opera mediums can work together well! I look forward to the second opera with winds in the pit!!

Convention Premieres

Bandanna, music by Daron Aric Hagen, words by Paul Muldoon

Presented by The University of Texas Opera Theatre, Robert Simone, director; Michael Haithcock, conductor

from the composer:

The operas I have written with my librettist-partner Paul Muldoon share a basic tension between characters who can accept that love is earned or is temporary, and those who demand love be absolute. Naturally we see those who wish love to be definitive as adolescent or crazy, yet we are drawn to them because we empathize with their longing for purity. For better or worse, they have put themselves on the line for what they feel. Bandanna's story was described by an Irish Times critic as "Touch of Evil meets Othello." There is an affectionate debt owed, at least on the part of the composer, to the screenplays of Francois Truffaut and Orson Wells, but that influence is not central to the story the authors are telling. Our opera ends with the words "To live is to sleep, to die awaken" interwoven with words from the Catholic requiem. Dedicated to the memories of Olivia Kuenne, a girl cut down at the age of six by a freak accident, and my brother Britt Arvid Hagen, who died suddenly of pneumonia at the age of forty, Bandanna was written in the firm belief that remembering the dead permits one to struggle against the transience of life. Furthermore, our story's contemporary usefulness may stem more perhaps from its meditation on Spenglerian moral relativism than its revisitation of the simple truth that people, no matter who they are, "tend to overstep the line."

Synopsis from the librettist:

Set in a Texas border town, Bandanna is the story of the chief of police, Miguel Morales, and two officers who have served with him there and in Veitnam. There's Jake, who's resentful of Cassidy's advancement over him, and who is playing a dangerous double-role as policeman and guide to successive groups of immigrant workers. With the encouragement of a shady union leader, Kane, Jake determines to convince Morales that his wife, Mona, is having an affair with Cassidy, a plot in which Jake's fiancee, Emily, is an unwitting accomplice. Conceived as both an opera and a musical, Bandanna is a brilliant revisiting of the great themes of fate and sexual infatuation.

CONFERENCE WRAP-UP -

Bandanna Overture by Daron Hagen

Small College Intercollegiate Band H. Robert Reynolds, conductor

from the composer:

Bandanna Overture begins with an introduction juxtaposing two ideas: a recurring rhythmic motive which, in the opera, is associated with the beating of Mona's heart, and a melody to which the women of the tiny border town cry, "Santa Maria, Salve!" This is followed by a seven bar refrain based on music from a fist fight in the opera's first scene during which townspeople are singing things like "Beat him to death!" and "Slap on the cuffs!"

The introduction is followed by the first major section of the overture which weaves together two melodies—one to which the character Jake sings "Donde esta mi querida?" and the other to which the chorus sings "To live is to sleep; to die is to awaken." The refrain is then expanded to include a tune which the chorus sings the words "Day of the Dead: Dia de los Muertos."

The second section juxtaposes two more themes from the opera—one to which the character Kane sings "Off the hook, all of you working in the onion fields!" and the other to which the chorus sings "Dona nobis requiem."

The third section, marked "Like the Main Title of a '30's Melodrama," is the melody with which the opera begins, climaxes and ends. The first time it appears, a chorus of migrant workers sings the words "We strike out across the river, with our lives between our teeth" as they plunge across the Rio Grande from Mexico to the United States. The second time we hear the melody it underpins the scene in which Morales "crosses over" from jealousy to madness. We hear the melody a final time at the opera's close, immediately after Mona's death, when her soul is passing from this world to the next across a metaphorical river Styx.

The overture ends as the opera opens and closes, with the recurring chorale melody whose words at the beginning of the opera, "To live is to sleep; to die is to awaken" and "Dona nobis pacem" have returned at the opera's end with greater, sadder significance.

It is important to note that Bandanna Overture was composed especially for the concert hall, it is not to be performed as part of the staged opera.

Wedding Dances and Epiphany from Bandanna by Daron Hagen (arr. Spede)

University of Kansas Symphonic Band Robert E. Foster, conductor

As the character in Orson Welles' unforgettable film Touch of Evil observes, "Border towns bring out the worst in people." Bandanna is an opera set in 1968 in a small border town in Texas. The second act begins with a wedding reception at which the principle characters of the opera pair off in a sequence of wedding dances. This suite contains the music from that anything-but-happy wedding reception. During the course of the dances, Mona, the pretty wife of the town's police chief Morales, dances innocently with each of her husband's associates. Morales, a jealous man by nature who has been led to believe that he is being cuckolded, grows increasingly drunk, his rage mounting, as he watches each successive paring.

J'ai ete au bal by Donald Grantham

The University of Texas at Austin Wind Ensemble Jerry F. Junkin, conductor

from the composer:

J'ai ete au bal is a celebration of some of the popular/folk music styles of Louisiana—in particular Cajun music and the brass band tradition of New Orleans. The dance flavor of much of the music is suggested by the title ("I went to the dance"), and two traditional Cajun dance tunes are employed. The first appears near the beginning and later at the end. "Allons danser, Colinda" ("Let's go dancing, Colinda") is a boy's attempt to coax Colinda into going dancing, and part of his argument is "it's not everyone who knows how to dance the two-beat waltzes." This touching little tune does work better in a syncopated two, but is usually represented in notation as 3+3+2. The second Cajun song is "Les flammes d'infer" ("The flames of Hell"), most often performed as a heavily accented two-step. My version is much faster and lighter, and is introduced by a country-fiddle style tune. The brass band section begins with solo tuba, followed by a duet with the euphonium, and culminating in a full brass presentation.

J'ai ete au bal was commissioned by The University of Texas Wind Ensemble, Jerry F. Junkin, conductor.

Regional Accents by Carolyn Bremer

University of Oklahoma Wind Symphony William K. Wakefield, conductor

from the composer:

Though the title Regional Accents seems to imply the music has some connection with geographically delineated speech mannerisms, in fact it does not. It refers instead to a loose structure based on areas of distinct rhythmic patterns.

The piece can be divided into three large sections. The first plays with the subdivisions of six beats into a duple (6/8) or triple (3/4) meter, often simultaneously. A melodic fragment returns sometimes more ornamented, sometimes bare-boned. Throughout this section, light elements are interspersed with more aggressive ones which eventually give way to the whimsy of section two.

The middle section is meant to be awkward in many ways. It is rhythmically quite challenging and oafish; the pitches incorporate large leaps making them cumbersome and clumsy, and formally, there is a certain elegance omitted from the structure.

At last organization reigns in the blundering ensemble. The final section relies on a simple duple pulse which is attacked only through various syncopations. There are elements of large-scale return. The opening marimba line appears again, this time twice as fast and attached to different foreground material. The simple melody bellows in near the end, giving the low brass a moment in the foreground and a chance for the ensemble to play really loud. In a sense, the notion of areas of shifting accents in subsumed by the power of the wind ensemble as a whole; smaller gestures are transformed into longer lines. Still, the forceful rhythm fragments have their final say with one lone slapstick getting the last laugh.

- CONFERENCE WRAP-UP/PREMIERES

Chronicles by Joseph Turrin

The University of New Mexico Wind Symphony Eric Rombach-Kendall, conductor

from the composer:

I composed Chronicles during the summer of 1998. It's the second large trumpet work I've written for Phil Smith; the first being a Concerto for Trumpet commissioned by the New York Philharmonic in 1988. This work in many ways could also be considered a concerto, if not in a strict sense of form, at least in its expansiveness.

The first movement (Prologue), has several thematic ideas that interweave throughout. There's a mixture of pointillism versus lyricism here along with a driving pulse created by running scale passages shared between soloist and ensemble. I also use a fan-fare-like motive that reappears throughout the piece. At times, it seems to be the one unifying force in the movement; holding all the disjunct elements in place. There is a quick coda, ending with a seven bar chorale in which the solo trumpet recaps material from the opening cadenza.

The second movement (Lamentation) begins with a chorale and is followed by five contrasting sections. Although this movement on the surface with all its many sections seems a bit scattered it is in fact very tightly constructed.

The last movement (Epilogue) is no more than a rondo in 3/4 time. There's a hint of the waltz style here which seems to have gone awry. There is a middle section that is slowly lyrical. There's a return of the rondo which eventually leads to the climax of the complete work.

The Wild Rumpus by Stephen David Beck Louisiana State University Wind Ensemble Frank Wicks, conductor

The Wild Rumpus was inspired by the children's book Where the Wild Things Are by Maurice Sendak. Near the middle of the story, the hero, a young boy named Max, discovers the world of the Wild Things and is crowned King of the Wild Things. At that point, Max shouts, "Let the wild rumpus start!" The following pages contain three tableaus, each depicting part of the wild rumpus, including the wild things howling at the moon, swinging from the trees, and marching through the forest. This piece is based on the first and third tableaus.

This work was commissioned by and dedicated to Frank Wicks and the Louisiana State University Wind Ensemble.

Other recent premieres

The world premiere of The Palace Rhapsody, op. 72 by Aulis Sallinen was given at the Cheltenham International Festival July 6, 1997 by the RNCM Wind Orchestra, conducted by Timothy Reynish. The work was commissioned jointly by the Royal Northern College of Music, Manchester UK, (with funds provided by the Foundation for Sport and the Arts) and the College Band Directors' National Association.

Sallinen has viewed this work in the vein of the Harmonie arrangements of 18th Century opera and has based the piece on his very successful opera The Palace, deriving the composition from some of the main themes. The Palace was premiered at the Savolinna Festival in Finland and received its premiere in the original English version at the New York City Opera in 1998. The opera is a satire with dark undertones on the subject of authoritarian power. The libretto draws on two different sources, borrowing characters from Mozart's opera Die Entfuhrung aus dem Serail and ideas from Kapuscinski's novel The Emperor, which observes the fall of Haille Selassie, last Emperor of Ethiopia. While the score includes many of Sallinen's most infectious melodies, the undertones are ominous as the occupants of The Palace transfer power from one dictator to an equally totalitarian authority. The music of the Rhapsody deliberately reflects the black comedy of the opera—exaggerated contrasts of style mirror the dramatic shifts of mood, from bustling mater-of-factness to dark, bleak drama via jazzy episodes of comic burlesque.

The work is scored for orchestral winds, brass and percussion with one additional saxophone and piano, and is published by Novello/Music Sales.

The Temple College Wind Symphony, conducted by Stephen Crawford, premiered Temple of Tolerance by Ken Langer on November 22, 1998. Dr. Langer is currently associate professor of music at Lyndon State College in Lyndonville, Vermont.

Temple of Tolerance is written for brass quintet and eight percussionists.

The composer provided the following notes:

Temple of Tolerance was inspired by a dream of mine. In this dream, I envisioned several scientists and adventurers who took a journey in the midst of some remote jungle. They were searching for a lost civilization. After searching for many days, they discovered the remains of a civilization. In their explorations, they found a large temple in the midst of the village. What they discovered, however, was that the temple was erected not for the worship of any particular god. Rather, it was constructed to the worship of an idea. What these ancient people worshipped was the idea of tolerance—the acceptance of the diversity of people and all things.

Temple of Tolerance musically explores the sonorities of the brass and percussion, exploiting the contrasts in color. The composition opens with a mysterious fugue in the brass that eventually gives way to the shimmer of percussion suggesting the explorers finding their way out of the jungle to their destination. The next section is percussion: ostinato patterns are found in the mallet percussion underscored by the quasi-primitive rhythms. The two groups are then joined where we hear elements of the original fugue in the brass and then again in the chorale-like setting of the mallet percussion. The work ends in a flurry of rhythmic ostinati.

The Catholic University of America Chamber Winds, Robert J. Garofalo, conductor, will premiere a new composition by Andrew Simpson. The three-movement work for solo piano and wind ensemble is titled Candelas with three movements: Pneumatic Hammers, the river is filled with lights, and The Phosphorus Garden. The premiere will take place at Catholic University in Washington, D. C. on April 30, 1999.

NEWS -

Frank Battisti spent three weeks in China last Fall. During his visit he presented a conducting clinic for Beijing-area band directors at the Beijing Central Conservatory. He also conducted concerts with three Beijing bands/wind ensembles. Frank was the first non-Chinese conductor to ever conduct the People's Liberation Army National Band (the Chinese Marine Band) in a public concert.

The New England Conservatory Wind Ensemble has two CDs in current release: a new CD from Albany Records (Bernard Rands' Ceremonial, Harbison's Olympic Dances, Kraft's Concerto for Four Solo Percussion & Wind Ensemble, and Husa's Les Couleurs Fauvre) and a Windjammers Unlimited re-release of the two-CD set, A Tribute to Merle Evans, an anthology of circus music originally recorded in 1970.

Frank Battisti has also passed-along this note regarding his upcoming retirement from the NEC:

"I have informed the Conservatory that this year (1998-99) will be my last year at the Conservatory. When I finish next May it will make a good 30 years at NEC. The Conservatory has been and continues to be a great place to teach and make music. I love what I do and my students. However, as I approach my 68th birthday I feel that I want to jettison the demands of a weekly schedule and be able to pursue some of the other things that I have a passion for. I know I will miss the Conservatory but I am looking forward to the possibilities and opportunities open to me when I make this move. I plan to continue guest conducting and teaching (I have bookings through 2002), commission more music, write, study American History (maybe earn a degree and eventually teach it?) and travel the world with my wife, Charlotte. I also want to become involved in projects and activities that are aimed at improving music education in our schools, especially those that explore new ways of preparing young musicians to teach music. We need to develop a whole corps of "music missionaries" who will go into the public schools and create experiences that will foster an involvement, appreciation and love of "the art of music" in young people."

John Locke, Director of Bands at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Southern Division President and host of the 2000 CBDNA Southern Division Conference, announces the following regarding the conference:

Conference Hotel

The Greensboro Hilton; 304 North Greene Street (downtown); phone: 336-379-8000.

This is a full service, luxury hotel with many amenities including a parking garage, airport shuttle service, an enormous health club and indoor pool. A very attractive convention rate of $79 per room plus 12% tax (single thru quad) has been negotiated for our conference. Most of our CBDNA meetings, clinics, sessions, etc. will occur at the Hilton. The Intercollegiate Band will be housed at the Hilton and will rehearse there. Members of bands invited to perform will also be housed at the Greensboro Hilton.

The UNCG School of Music will occupy a new 27 million dollar music building in July 1999 and we will plan to have at least one event in our new Recital Hall.

Request for Performing Group Tapes

Following past Southern Division CBDNA traditions, the President-Elect will serve as Chair of the Performing Group Selection Committee and will receive tapes of groups applying to perform at the February 2000 conference in Greensboro, NC. The Chair will form a select committee which will listen blindly and evaluate all tapes submitted. The Chair will make recommendations to the Southern Division President who will extend invitations to chosen bands.

As in the past, an attempt will be made to invite bands to the convention not only from well established band programs at colleges and universities, but also from small colleges and universities, from traditionally African-American institutions and from colleges which do not have a department or school of music.

Tapes should be approximately 30 minutes in length and in cassette or DAT format. (no open reel tapes, please) Do not include any identification on the tape itself. Please do label the box and include a list of repertoire in the order it appears on the tape with the date of the recording. Tapes should be from unedited performances. An edited compact disc or edited DAT tape is not acceptable. Tapes are to be received by May 15, 1999 and notification of selection to perform will be made by June 20, 1999.

All tapes are to be submitted to our Southern Division CBDNA President Elect and Chair of the Performing Group Selection Committee: Dr. Bobby Adams; Director of Bands; School of Music; Campus Box 8399; Stetson University; DeLand, FL 32720

Southern Division Intercollegiate Band Building on the success of the 1998 conference in Jacksonville, this conference will also feature a Southern Division Intercollegiate Band comprised of outstanding talent from the college and university bands from throughout our Division. Richard Greenwood of the University of Southern Florida has agreed to lend his expertise again to us for the task of organizing this event. A committee of volunteers will be appointed by the Southern Division President to undertake this important task.

Rehearsals will take place in Greensboro at the Hilton Hotel on Thursday and Friday, February 24-25, with the concert occurring on Saturday, February 26, 2000 in Aycock Auditorium at UNCG.

The twenty fourth annual Symposium for New Band Music, sponsored by the Virginia chapter of CBDNA, was held February 11-13, 1999 at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia.

Five composers from across the country were chosen to conduct their new works in open rehearsals over the three day period. Composers and their works were:

Harry Bulow (Charlotte, NC) - Kakkazan Frank Felice (Indianapolis) - Passage Stephen Gryc (Hartford) - Masquerade Variations on a Theme of Sergei Prokofiev Stephen Taylor (Bloomington, IL) -Shattering Suns

Kevin Walcyzk (Monmouth, OR) - An American Portrait

The Virginia Intercollegiate Band served as the performing ensemble. The 65 member band was composed of students from eight Virginia colleges and universities.

Next year's symposium, the twenty fifth annual, will be held February 10-12, 2000, at the University of Richmond.

The Duke University Wind Symphony is currently planning its eighth study abroad program to Vienna, Austria.

During the Spring semester of 2000, the Duke University Wind Symphony, Kraig Alan Williams, director, will travel to Vienna for course work and concert tours. The Wind Symphony's Vienna Program is a fully-approved semester-long residency program offered by Duke University's Office of Foreign Academic Programs in conjunction with the Department of Music. Members of the ensemble will study in Vienna and give a series of concerts in and around Austria and Eastern Europe.

The ensemble will depart on January 11, 2000, fly to Vienna, which will serve as the "home base" for classes, weekend concert tours, sightseeing trips, a week-long concert tour to Malta and optional semester break trips. After final exams, a significant concert tour is scheduled.

Students will take a semester's worth of Duke courses (taught in English by Viennese professors), along with a schedule of two hours per day of rehearsals. Kraig Alan Williams, conductor of the Duke Wind Symphony, will serve as principal conductor, director of the program, and will oversee all instruction. Jerry F. Junkin, director of bands at The University of Texas at Austin will be the featured guest conductor for a week-long session of rehearsing and concerts. The musicians will also have numerous opportunities to work with other European conductors and ensembles throughout the semester.

The Vienna Program welcomes and encourages ALL undergraduate and graduate applicants from ANY accredited college or university. All participants must have a scholastic average of at least a B-. Applications for the program (due October 1, 1999) are available from either address listed below. For additional information, a brochure, and an application, contact: Office of Foreign Academic Programs; 121 Allen Building, Box 90057; Durham, NC 27708-0057; Tel: (919) 684-2174: Fax: 684-3083: (919)abroad@asdean.duke.edu, OR: Kraig A. The Arkansas Chapter of CBDNA had the first Intercollegiate Band in over 30 years. The band rehearsed and performed January 29 and 30 at Ouachita Baptist University's Jones Performing Arts Center with clinician Eugene Corporon. Represented were members from every college and university band in Arkansas.

The Sudler International Wind Band Composition Competition now has rules and information listed on the world-wideweb at http://members.aol.com/byrnefp/page/sudler.htm. Deadline is October 30, 1999. Application form and compliance with all rules required. See website for official rules.

News Releases from Robert Garofalo: New publication: Suite Francaise by Darius Milhaud: A Teaching/Learning Unit by Robert J. Garofalo; Meredith Music Publications, 1998.

This publication documents the folk song sources used by Milhaud in the composition, and includes an interpretive analysis of the work, a teacher's lesson plan, and a student learning guide. Written for any band or orchestra conductor planning to perform the work. Applies MENC Standards to the podium. (60pgs.) $16.95 from Meredith Music Publications.

New Publishing Company Established: Whirlwind Music Publications was established to fulfill a perceived need: the publication of high quality literature for woodwind, brass, and percussion instruments. Whirlwind Music will specialize in publishing noteworthy chamber wind music (8 to 15 players) as well as outstanding music for small ensembles (trios, quartets, quintets, etc.), wind orchestra, and chorus and winds. For more information, contact Robert Garofalo.

The University of Kansas held a "Fennell Festival" in October, 1998, a two-week residency celebrating the musical life and scholarship of the distinguished conductor, lecturer, scholar, founder of the Eastman Wind Ensemble and conductor laureate of the Kosei Wind Orchestra, To-kyo. Fennell presented three lectures: "Composers I Have Known," "A Last, Here Comes the Band," and "What's Out There For You...LOTS!"

Two concerts were presented, each conducted by Dr. Fennell:

The New England College Band Association presented its prestigious Chrisman Award for Lifetime Achievement (for 1998) to Commander Lewis J. Buckley, conductor of the US Coast Guard Band. Named in honor of Lee Chrisman, a long-time contributor to the NECBA, the award is given for outstanding contributions to the development of band music in New England.

Glen J. Hemberger, The University of North Texas, recently presented a session at the 25th National Conference of the Sonneck Society for American Music. Titled "Quintessentially Americana: Rediscovering the Songs of John Philip Sousa," the session included the first live performance reconstruction of three Sousa songs in over seventy years. In keeping with Mr. Hemberger's ongoing research into these songs and their historic performance practice by a chamber-sized wind ensemble (and not the full forces of the Sousa Band), the lecture-recital included performance of "The Snow Baby," "The Maid of the Meadow," and "I've Made My Plans for the Summer" featuring vocal soloist Shannah Cheek.

Al Sergel of Northwest Missouri State University, in his capacity as Kappa Kappa Psi Vice President for Professional Relations announces auditions for the 1999 National Intercollegiate Band. The ensemble will perform at the national convention held in St. Louis July 25-27. Taped auditions must be postmarked no later than April 20, 1999. For more information, contact the Kappa Kappa Psi/Tau Beta Sigma national headquarters at 800-543-6505, or Al Sergel 660-562-1794 (ASERGEL @mail.nwmissouri.edu) or Suzanne Banister 785-231-1010 x1518 (zzbani@washburn.edu)

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

The International Society for the Promotion and Investigation of Band Music, announces the second Fritz-Thelen-Prize for an outstanding band dissertation, completed during the years 1995 to 1999. Applicants from the United States should send two copies of your dissertation to Bob Grechesky, Butler University, Jordan College of Fine Arts, 4600 Sunset Avenue; Indianapolis, IN 46208. Others send to: Dr. Wolfgang Suppan, Institute for Ethnomusicology, University for Music and Theatre Arts in Graz, Leonhardstraße 15, A-8010 Graz/Austria. Acceptance of entries will end June 30th, 1999.

The next IGEB-Conference will be held July 17-23, 2000 in Bad Waltersdorf/ Styria, Austria. Proposals for papers or research reports can be sent until December 15th, 1999 to Dr. Wolfgang Suppan, at the address above. Welcome are papers and research-reports about new musicological, sociological, educational etc. research, connected with the band development. Papers of high quality will be printed in Alta Musica.

The 2nd International MID-EUROPE Conference for Symphonic Bands and Ensembles will take place July 14-18, 1999, in Schladming, Austria. Concerts from bands from all over the world, clinics, meetings, exhibitions will make this MID-EUROPE a top band event in central Europe and a bridge to a just beginning development of bands in eastern European countries. Contact Dr. Wolfgang Suppan for more information.

IN MEMORIAM

Norman E. Smith passed away on November 23, 1998 after a brief illness. Among Dr. Smith's most notable publications were Band Music Notes and March Music Notes. Two additional publications, Program Notes for Band and Trumpet Player Interviews were still in preparation at the time of his death. The completed materials will be prepared for publication by his two daughters, Pam and Linda.

A native of Missouri, Dr. Smith's family moved to Oklahoma in 1927 and then to Louisiana in the late '30's. He earned degreed from the University of Southwestern Louisiana, Louisiana State University and Florida State University. During World War II he was a B-17 pilot. After 9 years teaching at the secondary level, Dr. Smith began a 16-year tenure as Director of Bands at McNeese State University. He continued as professor of music for eight additional years and retired as Professor Emeritus in 1978.

Submissions to the Report

Send all materials to:

Douglas Stotter, editor CBDNA Report Department of Bands Merrill Hall Indiana University Bloomington, IN 47405

Submission deadlines:

- •June 1 for the Summer issue
- •October 1 for the Fall issue
- •March 1 for the Spring issue

Format preferences:

- •1st: Disk (MAC or PC)
- •2nd: send an email message to dstotter@indiana.edu
- •3rd: hard copies

For programs:

Please include your STATE and DATE OF PERFORMANCE in all submissions. The CBDNA Executive Board and the editor encourage program submissions for specific concerts in performance order rather than repertoire lists for semesters, tours, or school years. Many CBDNA members are as interested in how their fellow members program as they are in what they program.

Please note: When sending email or computer disk, do not use tabs, leader characters, boldface, italics, centering, justification, or other formatting. Submissions will be formatted prior to publication.

Dear Colleague:
We are trying to determine the state of chamber wind playing at the collegiate level in the United States. Please take a moment to respond to this short questionnaire. Include your name and school along with your responses and email Robert J. Garofalo at: Garofalo@his.com
Thanks in advance for you help. Robert Garofalo, Catholic University of America
James Croft, Florida State University
DEFINITIONS:
1) Chamber Winds are comprised of mostly woodwind, brass, and percussion instruments with occasional limited use of strings, keyboard, voice, and/or voices. 2) Chamber Winds consist of approximately 8 to 15 players. 3) Most Chamber Winds music would require a conductor.
QUESTIONNAIRE:
1. Does your school have a separate performing ensemble titled Chamber Winds? Yes No If no, skip to question 3. 2. If yes, please answer the following questions:
a. How often does the group rehearse?
b. How much credit does the course receive?c. How many concerts does the group perform during the academic year?
e. Do you conduct the ensemble? Yes No
f. If no, who conducts the group?3. If your school does not have a separate Chamber Winds ensemble, do you perform chamber wind literature with members of your band or wind ensemble? Check One: Never Rarely Occasionally Often Very Often

Any comments about Chamber Wind practices at your school would be appreciated. Thanks.

Submissions to the Report

Send all materials to:

Douglas Stotter, editor CBDNA Report Department of Bands Merrill Hall Indiana University Bloomington, IN 47405

Submission deadlines:

- •June 1 for the Summer issue
- •October 1 for the Fall issue
- •March 1 for the Spring issue

Format preferences:

- •1st: Disk (MAC or PC)
- •2nd: send an email message to dstotter@indiana.edu
- •3rd: hard copies

For programs:

Please include your STATE and DATE OF PERFOR-MANCE in all submissions.

The CBDNA Executive Board and the editor encourage program submissions for specific concerts in performance order rather than repertoire lists for semesters, tours, or school years. Many CBDNA members are as interested in how their fellow members program as they are in what they program.
